INTELLIGENCE ANALYST

I started in the EdS (Specialist in Education) program. Once completed, I immediately started the EdD (Doctorate in Education) coursework with my classmates. During this time, we began working on our dissertations while also completing course assignments. All that remains is the completion of the dissertation.

As a student, my favorite part was my instructors. I had some fantastic instructors who were experts in the curriculum and experts in making classroom time effective.

Having evening classes, one or two nights per week was ideal for me as a working adult. I also liked that the EdS program segued into the EdD program, so that I would have something to show for my work, if I had to leave the program early. Additionally, Dr. Hardt made arrangements to have most of our advising and registration needs taken care of by the Worldwide staff, so we could focus on our coursework.

Being in the degree program made me eligible for advancement at work. Some of my colleagues were also working on advanced degrees and I was able to help them, having been through the experience myself. Lastly and most importantly, I was able to fulfill my goal of working at a university.

I have sampled most types of post-secondary education. Throughout those experiences, it has become clear that providing a high level of service outside the classroom is as important as having a strong curriculum and engaging instructors. McKendree University has all three.
